Pride in what we do. Pride in how we do it.

“When I heard about CSX from a good friend and fellow U.S. Navy veteran, I applied immediately. Now, I have my dream job. I supervise maintenance and repair of railroad crossing gates, their related electronics components and the main line of road signaling and control track circuit. I now lead the men and women who keep the public, our customers, our employees and our trains safe.”

“I learned about CSX from my husband, a signalman for the company. He thought I’d like the outdoor work and the busy aspect of the job — and he was right. I first trained as a conductor, then became a signalman, and I’m now in my first management position as a trainmaster. I’ve met so many smart, interesting people all throughout the CSX territory — it’s like being in a large, extended family.”

CSX embraces rewarding and recognizing all those who contribute to our success. We’re also proud of the recognition others have given us.
